By Barry Napier

Delightful stories of a young Swansea girl growing up during World War 2

Billy Brown (Barry's mother) was a petite, beautiful girl who began her stage career aged three. Starting with local church concerts in a Welsh village, she took the concert circuit by storm, later to become the 'Comedy Queen of Wales'. Book covers her first nine years - a mischievous, kind and much-loved character.

The stories contained in this book would be perfect to form the basis of a script for a family prime time TV series.
