

Tory MP calls for churches to be banned from holding marriage ceremonies if they refuse gay couples

Written by J. B. Waddell
Monday, 31 October 2011 08:41

The facist face of GLBTQ lobbyists is revealed again with the call by Mike Weatherley, the Conservative MP for Hove, for churches to be banned from holding marriages if they refuse to perform civil partnerships for gay couples.

He says that the idea will bring more equality for gay couples.

In a letter (see below) to prime minister David Cameron, Mr Weatherley wrote: "As long as religious groups can refuse to preside over ceremonies for same-sex couples there will be inequality.

"Such behaviour is not to be tolerated in other areas, such as adoption, after all.

"Until we untangle unions and religion in this country we will struggle to find a fair arrangement."
\(Pink News 2 September, 2011\)

You can read further commentary on the total intolerance shown by GLBTQ lobbyists towards the freedom of Christians to manifest their religion, and the explicit intention of the Scottish Parliament to introduce Gay Marriage at Christian Voice.

© 31st October 2011

---oOo---

{loadposition btm_address}